Wives Were on Jury That Disagreed After Case in Local District Court

Some harsh words were spoken in connection with woman suffrage last night at the city hall, when two women, drawn to serve on a jury in the district court, failed to appear at their homes in time for dinner and their husbands came to get them.

They did not accompany their husbands home however, as they were confined in the jury room discussing a case which resulted in a disagreement, when the jury reported at 8:30 o'clock.

The case went to trial late in the afternoon and was presented to the jury consisting of ten men and two women about 6 o'clock. The jury then filed into the jury room and the discussion of the case began. Vote after vote was taken, it is said, but no agreement could be reached.

The case which the jury was asked to decide was that in connection with dispossession proceedings brought by Herman Ellis against the Perth Amboy Iron and Metal Company, Thomas Brown represented the defendants and H. K. Golenbock, of the firm of Wight, Wight and Golenbock,

This case was tried sometime ago and a verdict rendered in favor of the plaintiff. This verdict was later set aside by Supreme Court Justice James J. Bergen, who ordered a new trial. Ellis desired possession of the property on the grounds that the lease had expired, while the Perth Amboy Metal & Iron Company claimed that prior to the expiration of the lease Ellis entered into a verbal agreement with the firm in which he extended the lease for a few months, or at least until the company had an opportunity to remove some $30,000 worth of per-

The jury consisted of Eugene Mullin, Abe Suskin, Mrs. Alice Francis, Joseph Copeland, Joseph M. Donovan, Frank Chamberlain, Mr. Goldstein, A. K. Koyen, Garret Poulsen, Mrs. P. Parson, C. A. Mulligan and Carsten Jeessen.

"Hunting Big Game in Africa."

easily impressed this reviewer as the most fascinating animal picture he has ever seen. It is exciting and humorous. In spots it is very beautiful. It has no plot, purporting only to be the result of an expedition to the Dark Continent with gun and camera. In fact, we are not at all sure that it doesn't overtop any picture ever shown here in every department.

Certainly in respect to humor this master film stands nearly alone. There is nothing in the films at present half so funny as the sight of the expedition's flivver gaily pursuing a herd of galloping giraffes across African plains.

Then take the acting. There is no star, male or female, who is as fascinating to look upon as these strange wild beasts that pass back and forth before the camera at the Ditmas theatre.

At the Majestic

Seven big vaudeville acts comprise the show this week with Mary Miles Minter in "South of Suva." Walter Long, who plays the villain in "South of Suva," in which Mary Miles Minter is this week appearing at the Majestic theatre, declares

"She slings a mean wallop," is the way "Villain" Long describes the late Maxie's ring tactics.

Ideas for comedies are rare. For the type of feature comedies that Harold Lloyd makes, they are "rarer than rare."

making it the spectacular, colorful, latest and longest feature. "Safety Last," a seven-reel Pathecomedy, came like a flash out of a sky.

One day about a year ago, Harold Lloyd and his producer, Hal Roach, were walking on a downtown street in Los Angeles. It so happened that at the Roslyn Hotel that day, "Bill" Strother, known the world over as the "human-fly" was pitting his skill against the intricacies of the Ros-

"Safety Last" will be seen all this week at the Strand Theatre, and it is declared to be filled to the brim with thrills. The funny situations are there in abundance, and with Mildred Davis, Harold also demonstrates that he can take his place with the foremost Romeos of the screen.
